American Nurse Today is the official journal of the American Nurses Association, 8515 Georgia Avenue, Suite 400, Silver Spring, MD 20910-3492; 800-274-4ANA. The journal is owned and published by HealthCom Media. American Nurse Today is peer reviewed. The views and opinions expressed in the editorial and advertising material in this issue are those of the authors and advertisers and do not necessarily reflect the opinions or recommendations of the ANA, the Editorial Advisory Board members, or the Publisher, Editors, and staff of American Nurse Today.

American Nurse Today attempts to select authors who are knowledgeable in their fields. However, it does not warrant the expertise of any author, nor is it responsible for any statements made by any author. Certain statements about the uses, dosages, efficacy, and characteristics of some drugs mentioned here reflect the opinions or investigational experience of the authors. Nurses should not use any procedures, medications, or other courses of diagnosis or treatment discussed or suggested by authors without evaluating the patient's conditions and possible contraindications or dangers in use, reviewing any applicable manufacturer's prescribing or usage information, and comparing these with recommendations of other authorities.

Editorial mission: American Nurse Today is dedicated to integrating the art and science of nursing. It provides a voice for today's nurses in all specialties and practice settings. As the official journal of the American Nurses Association, it serves as an important and influential voice for nurses across the country. The journal is committed to delivering authoritative research translated into practical, evidence-based literature and relevant content to keep nurses up-to-date on best practices, help them maximize patient outcomes, advance their careers, and enhance their professional and personal growth and fulfillment.
