

Nurses House, Inc.

Springing Forward to New Heights

It's been an exciting several months for Nurses House, Inc. as we continue to make strides in becoming more visible across the United States. As a national non-profit organization, it is critical we are supported by not only nurses but those who know how important nurses are to healthcare in America. While applications for assistance are steadily growing, donations to support our grant program haven't caught up yet. However, with your help in spreading the word to your colleagues and others who support nurses, we can certainly help more fellow nurses in their time of need.

In addition, Nurses House, Inc. finally became a public charity after being a private entity since its inception over 100 years ago. This change allows us to apply for grants to bolster our income sources and help more nursing colleagues.

To reach more nurses far and wide, we have brought our ease of access to a new level. Nurses House has partnered with an up-and-coming computer-generated network that uses virtual bots to help find grants and create posts for social media. We have already applied for a few grants and hope to bring in more funding to enhance our ability to help more nurses. Check out our Facebook and Instagram pages for more information and upcoming events.

We hope you will join us for the annual Linda O'Brien Memorial Walk on November 14, 2026, at the ANA-NY Annual Conference in Troy, NY. Linda had been an avid supporter of Nurses House for decades and always donated the T-shirts each year for the walk. Since her death in April 2025, our yearly walk was appropriately named after her and it is a wonderful time for nursing colleagues to congregate, take a leisurely (or brisk) walk on the morning of the last day of the ANA-NY Conference. Please consider joining us this year and invite your friends and colleagues.

Spring is a season to celebrate change, gardens of flowers, and warm rays of sunshine, so please consider donating to help our nursing colleagues when they are facing dark times in their lives. Thank you. ■

New York's ANA NextGen Ambassador

The ANA NextGen Ambassador Program was created to engage Early Career nurses in ANA educational and networking experiences and create a dialogue on how to best engage with the next generation of nurses under age 30. From more than 400 applications, 15 ambassadors were selected, representing 13 states with a diversity in age, gender, race, role, and workplace setting. The selected ambassadors were offered a fully paid attendance to the 2025 ANCC Magnet & Pathway Conference and a complimentary 1-year joint membership in ANA and their local State Nurses Association.

Moselle Jules, RN is an inpatient nurse at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center and works with patients in plastics and reconstructive surgery, as well as gynecology surgical patients. Additionally, she has a per-diem position at New York-Presbyterian Hospital Weill Cornell, in a gastroenterology outpatient clinic as a triage remote nurse.

When asked why she chose to become a nurse she replied: "My mom and grandmother were both nurses in Haiti, and their compassion, resilience, and dedication to serving others deeply inspired me from a young age and I knew I wanted to follow in their footsteps. I was raised in the church, which provided me with opportunities to serve others, build relationships, and taught me the importance of empathy, cultural humility, and being present for people in their moments of need. Nursing felt like a natural extension of that service because it combined my love for helping others with my commitment to lifelong
